

The Leader of Industry Honors Awards presented at the CIB President's Ball May 11, 2001

Honored at the May President's Ball: from left, Casimir J. Bognacki, Jacob Grossman, Charles Alvarez, CIB President Carmine Attanasio, Edward Kluckowski (recipient of the Past President's Award), Raymond J. Finnegan, Vincent J. DeSantis, Salvatore Mancini, and Vincent J. DeSimone. Fruma Narov was also honored but was unable to attend.

Jo-Ann and Charles Alvarez.

Carmine and Paula Attanasio.

Jerry and Beverly Parnes.

Ray and Maureen Finnegan.

The Commissioner and NYCDEP guests.

The Port Authority table at the President's Ball.

Paul Zoltanetzky, Jr., Julie and Sal Mancini.

Reg Hough, Ed Kluckowski, Carmine Altanasio and Tony Limbaro.

Richard Tomasetti, Anne and Richard Anderson.

Closing remarks at the 2001 Leaders of Industry ceremony:

If you study Roger Corbetta's history, you see that his ambition for the CIB was not that the members of the Board stand only for concrete quality. The work "quality" meant more than the simple performance of water, sand, stone and cement. I am sure that in his wisdom he used quality as the synonym for integrity. And in that sense he spoke to the people of the people, not the product. And that is the real mission of the Concrete Industry Board, the people of our great industry. And that is why without fear of contradiction I can say to you, "The CIB has been, is and will be an independent perpetual work in progress bringing light and distinction to an ever-evolving industry."

— Antonio Limbaro,
Master of Ceremonies, 2001
President's Ball

Vincent and Grace Marie DeSantis, Vera and Jim Anderson.

Car and Donna Bognacki, Electra and Tony Limbaro.

Vincent and Lana DeSimone, Wanda and Jacob Grossman.

Guests of Slattery Skanska.

Photos by John Whinston

Paul Zoltanetzky, Jr., Julie and Sal Mancini.

Reg Hough, Ed Kluckowski, Carmine Attanasio and Tony Limbaro.

Richard Tomasetti, Anne and Richard Anderson.

Closing remarks at the 2001 Leaders of Industry ceremony:

If you study Roger Corbetta's history, you see that his ambition for the CIB was not that the members of the Board stand only for concrete quality. The work "quality" meant more than the simple performance of water, sand, stone and cement. I am sure that in his wisdom he used quality as the synonym for integrity. And in that sense he spoke to the people of the people, not the product. And that is the real mission of the Concrete Industry Board, the people of our great industry. And that is why without fear of contradiction I can say to you, "The CIB has been, is and will be an independent perpetual work in progress bringing light and distinction to an ever-evolving industry."

- Antonio Limbaro,
Master of Ceremonies, 2001
President's Ball

Vincent and Grace Marie DeSantis, Vera and Jim Anderson.

Cas and Donna Bognacki, Electra and Tony Limbaro.

Vincent and Lana DeSimone, Wanda and Jacob Grossman.

Guests of Slattery Skanska.

Photos by John Whinston